Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 03 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Unsettled today with rain, showers and thunderstorms.

Today:
A very unsettled day across most of the UK as early showers and rain in the south spread northwards, becoming heavy and thundery at times. Parts of northern, eastern and southwestern England are likely to see the heaviest rain.

Tonight:
Early evening showers and thunderstorms slowly fading away leaving many areas dry later. Still some showery rain over Scotland and the far south of England by dawn though.

Sunday:
Warm sunny spells for many areas, but cloudier in coastal parts of eastern Scotland and northeast England. Heavy thundery showers also developing in many regions from late morning.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Unsettled in the north with heavy, thundery showers, fine and dry in the south. An area of wet and unseasonably windy weather arrives from the south-west Tuesday. Remaining unsettled Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.